Part1:

The 2 Types of traffic: Targeted...and everything else

How to get targeted traffic: A quick marketing lesson.

Know your audience to get real traffic. 3 Examples...

Example #1- Traffic Exchanges

Traffic Exchanges, or TEs for short, are full of people that are really NOT interested in your site, and are only interested in getting traffic to their site. TE users are obviously not sure how to get good traffic, which is why they're surfing for credits in the first place!

Target this audience by offering a better solution to getting traffic. If you give this a little thought, then you'll realize that you already know enough about your target audience, since you're one of them possibly.

Offer a free report about getting free or better traffic via a squeeze page. This would definitely interest some traffic exchange surfers. The report you give away should recommend a good traffic exchange domination ebook for sales. You will make commissions this way.

Many people are successful with traffic using this exact method.

Since TE surfers also could use a course on how to properly market their sites, this is another topic for a free report you could give away. When you give away the report, you should do so via a squeeze page in order to build your subscribers list. Now you know what they want to learn how to market, or how to get traffic. Send those lists follow-up emails with more information about these topics.

This is pretty simple to do, really.

Know what your target audience wants and give it to them: this is $$$ in the bank

Example #2-Giveaway Events:

Giveaway events are online events where people give away products in exchange for a person's name and email address. This is a pretty good deal for all involved.

Most events have some sort of theme, so if you choose to participate in a giveaway event try to contribute a free product that is related to the event's theme. To learn more about this type of event, go to <http://jvgiveawayguide.com>

Example #3- Find you target audience.

This method is basic marketing and has been around for a long time. Go to a search engine and type in the name of your niche and search for forums, newsletters, ezines, blogs, and some more social networking sites related to your niche.

Sign up for all of the newsletters and sites that you can, BUT use a gmail account for this. Wait for the onslaught of emails you're about to receive and start reading.

See which sites and newsletters look good and experiment with some paid advertising there. Keep whatever works, and unsubscribe from the rest.

Finding targeted traffic is not rocket science, but does require some effort and thinking, which not many people seem to want to do.

There are many other ways to get targeted traffic but this is more of a marketing lesson to teach you how to think like your target audience and find them.

H.I.T.S.= How Idiots Track Sales

Fake traffic= bogus traffic people buy all the time:

Fake traffic comes from buying guaranteed hits and blasters. Not only is this traffic usually non-targeted, but its also traffic that most newbies don't know how to verify.

Another thing about fake traffic: Those sites will 'deliver' unique visitors, but each visitor isn't even a person. I once bought a package for $80.00 for 15,000 unique visitors. Less than 1% of them stayed on my site for longer than a minute. Most lasted under 10 seconds.

Out of 15,000 unique visitors I had no conversions, which leads me to believe that the traffic wasn't even human visitors. Every website should have some sort of statistics tracking that comes with the hosting. Use the tracking tool that your hosting provides as part of the service they're providing you.

I use the tracking tool called AWSTATS (Advanced web Statistics) that comes with my hosting. That's how you verify that you're actually getting traffic form these sources. And even if they do send traffic from human visitors, it's usually not targeted traffic.

Part 2: How to get traffic from the search engines

- Traffic generation made simple
- Search Engine Results Placement
- Page Rank vs. Rankings and SERP
- On-page SEO/ optimized web pages
- Off-page SEO/ (link-building)

Search engines provide a service. Google, Yahoo, and MSN are examples of search engine. The service they provide is that you can type in a search for some topic or keyword and the engines searches the Internet and returns with results.

The return results will usually show web sites that are relevant to your search query.

Many Good Links + Good WebPages= Much Traffic

Traffic generation made simple:

A good link-building strategy with well-optimized web pages will help your site get good SERP (search engine results placement).

SERP= Search Engine Results Placement (SERP)

Also known as “rankings”, SERP can be dumbed-down to this definition:

Search Engines will show your web site in their Results and Place your site higher if you have quality links and good on-page SEO. The higher your chosen keywords are (their “placement”) the better your rankings.

Rankings! This is what it's all about. When it comes to search engine traffic, this is your main concern, not Page Rank, or link popularity, or anything else!!!

Now rankings are important because that's where you'll be seeing some free traffic from the search engines. There are 1000s of ways to get traffic, however it seems that the Holy Grail of traffic generation is type-in traffic from any of the major search engines.

What is type-in traffic, A.k.A. Organic, or natural traffic?

All that means is when you go to a search engine and type in a search query like "dog training guide" if that person sees your websites on a page that was returned with results, and they click on the link to your site, that's a type-in traffic visitor.

Now, what rankings means is that your site will show up for the search term "dog training guide" is you set up your site properly. for a site to get good ranking for whatever it's about (it's keywords and keyphrases) you need 2 things, basically...

High Page Rank Does Not Mean Lots Of Traffic

Page Rank, A.K.A.PR vs. Rankings and SERP:

Page Rank means nothing except that it's deemed as an important site and doesn't guarantee that your site is getting traffic. As a matter of fact, if you get enough of the right links, you'll have plenty of Page Rank coming to your site, and soon your site, with little or no traffic going to it will have a respectable PR.

Please note that Page Rank does not mean high rankings, but if you get a Page Rank of 4 for your blog or site, you can make a nice little income selling text links off the site. I've heard that Google is starting to crack down on sites that sell text links for SEO purposes.

Optimizing a web page, A.K.A. On-page SEO

In order for your site to be shown on the results page for somebody typing in a certain search query, your site has to be optimized for those terms. There's basic optimization that anyone can do to make their site about something. Optimizing a web page involves using metatags, anchor text, and descriptions.

This only take a little while to do for each page and can be done automatically if you're using a good tool or HTML editor. If/when you do this, your site will show up in the search results when somebody types in a search for whatever your site is about.

This is called type-in traffic, or natural traffic. If you get your site to show up on Page 1 of the search results for a much searched-for search term, you're going to get lots of traffic. However, on-page SEO is only a small part of what you should do to optimize your site if it's for a competitive search term that has lots of competing sites.

Links pointing back to your site means more traffic and better rankings for properly optimized sites

Off-page SEO/ link-building

Link-building- the other half of the traffic generation equation...

For the newbies:

What is a link?

A URL or web address that you click on to go to a web page.

Typical straight link: <http://automatedlinkbuilding.com>

What is a hidden link?

A hidden link is descriptive text that you can click on which brings you to a url or web address etc.... Typical hidden link: Click Here to automate your link building

Types of links you can get to your site:

- Bad links- link farms
- 1-way links, A.K.A. back-links
- 2-way links, reciprocal linking
- 3-way links
- Relevant, non-relevant links
- Temporary and permanent links

The 2 methods of getting links to your site

- Automatically
- Manually

Link farms and link directories: not the best places to get links. Google sees that there's really no relevancy or quality of content to those sites and that they're merely link farms where people go to get free links.

Google has been known to put websites into their "sandbox" because they had links coming predominantly from link farms.

Avoid link farms at all cost...your site could get blacklisted by search engines for having a link coming from a "bad neighborhood" like a link farm.

One-way links, back-links...when a site links back to you.

One-way links have become more valuable than reciprocal links because the search engines "guess" about the secret agreement between the webmasters to exchange the links and often discount reciprocal links to some degree.

However, reciprocal links can still be valuable if links are being exchanged with important sites. The term "back-link" is used so often it could be misinterpreted as meaning a reciprocal, 2-way link.

Suffice to say, a back-link is a link back to your site, and leave it at that.

One-way links are good because you can get some of the Page Rank from other sites passed on down to your site. Again Page Rank doesn't mean traffic, but many of the top traffic sites do have high page rank.

2 Examples of good ways to get one-way links and traffic for your site,

Article directories- submit articles to article directories, and leave a link to your site at the end of the article. That means your site is getting a one-way form a high page rank site.

NOTE: The page that your article is on may have a PR of ZERO, but if you use a tool like Keyword Elite, you'd see that the Page Rank of the article page linking back to your site is, in fact, a high Page Rank site.

I wrote 15 articles and submitted them to only one article directory and all the links were pointed back to a blog I have. That's blog has a Page Rank of 3.

That would not have happened if there was no Page Rank being passed down from the article directory to my blog...

Traffic From Search Engines isn't the only traffic you want. Web 2.0 traffic is much-desired, too

Post to blogs in your niche.

Many blogs allow for comments to be made after and underneath the blog posts on the site. Posting to blogs and leaving comments that are sensible to content of post and leaving your link there will bring traffic and possible Page Rank to your site.

2- way links, A.K.A. reciprocal links- are not valued as much anymore.

Example of reciprocal linking:

Site A (dog food site) puts a link to >>>> Site B (fishing gear site), and Site B (fishing gear site) reciprocates by putting a link to >>Site A (dog food site)

Reciprocal links used to be quite valuable.. not so any more. There's a certain aspect of relevancy that comes into play with link-building. Relevant links back to your site are better than irrelevant sites linking back to you, but as things stand now, it's not a huge cause for concern.

What is important is the anchor text in the link pointing back to your site.

Try and look at things this way:

There an site unrelated to your niche pointing back to your site (linking to your site) but there is some relevancy in the way that site is linking to yours if there anchor text is there.

Let's use for an example a site about getting out of debt.

A site about managing your personal finances is not really relevant to a site about making money as an internet marketer, right? If that site had an article about a good way to make money with internet marketing, to help get out of debt, that'd be a nice link back to my site.

Good anchor text add relevancy to links. You don't need relevant sites linking to you (but it helps)

The debt relief site isn't relevant to the site it linked to, but the anchor text made the LINK relevant. The words in blue are the anchor text for the link.

If you click on the link above, you will arrive at a site that is about internet marketing. That makes the link relevant, and is also why it's not 100% necessary to have sites in your niche linking to yours.

However, it could only help to have relevant sites with relevant links pointing back to yours. Just keep in mind that the best kind of link would be a high page rank, relevant one-way link from a high-traffic site. The search engines like one-way and 3-way links better than reciprocal 2-way links.

3-Way links- A.K.A. 3-way link-building

Here is a dumbed-down example of 3-way linking:

Site A- links to --->> Site B which links to---->> Site C...

Site B- links to --->> Site C which links to---->> Site B...

Site C- links to --->> Site A which links to---->> Site C...

However, 3-way linking methodology can be done in such a way that each site gets up to 250 links to it from other sites, and can be automated!

Click here for a great 3-way link-building service

Isn't 3-way linking is merely another way to manipulate the search engines?

Everything is about manipulating the search engines to get people to your site!

- That's why you make your site about something, by optimizing web pages.
- That's why you try to get good one-way links back to your site.
- That's why you try to get relevant links.

There will never be a consensus on this, because things always change and SEO is something that you need to stay on top of in order to remain a true expert.

Isn't 3-way linking akin to distributable link farming?

Absolutely not. A typical link farm is a site with nothing but links on it.

The site is about nothing, offers no real value to a reader/visitor, and it's considered bad "mojo" if you have most of your links coming from link farms.

Link-farming is a site with nothing but links on it. A good 3-way linking service creates a network of links to your site that were manually approved.

A good 3-way linking service will also make sure that the links coming to your site are from related sites by having categories for each site submitted.

Despite what many people claim, NOT having relevant sites linking to your site won't hurt. However, it can only help if all the sites linking to you are related to your site. This is where reciprocal linking and link farms fail to do your site any good.

NOTE:

When faced with confusion from alleged experts and I don't know what to do, I just go ahead and try something instead of reading other people's non-factual opinions and get even more confused.

I tried a 3-way linking system and it worked. It started building links right away, and in 45 days, I was on page-1 of Google for a fairly competitive search term that got 51 searches a day on Google.

However the service I tried cost too much so I created my own version of that service and improved upon it with some new features.

Part 2 Summary:

To get search engine traffic you need optimized web pages and good links.

That's it... Simple.

Web 2.0 style traffic can be very targeted, and it's easy to get this traffic if you know where to look

Part 3, Web 2.0 Traffic

In this guide, you will find a list of literally hundreds of social sites that you can use in your promotional plans for practically any product, service, or website that you intend to promote and market online.

There are 3 main types of social websites:

- Social Networking sites
- Social Bookmarking sites
- Video Sharing sites

Each type of site works a bit differently. Therefore, your strategies should be a bit different for each of the three types of sites.

This guide contains a separate directory for each type of social website, as well as some tips on how best to approach using each of the three types of sites to your best advantage.

Social Networking Sites

Social networking sites (ex. Myspace and Squidoo) are websites where people come together to chat, interact, exchange ideas, and develop new relationships. In some ways, a modern day social networking website serves a similar function as did the "town square" or the "main drag" for your parents and grandparents.

It's a place where people go to meet other people and to .... socialize!

From a marketing point of view, social networking websites provide an opportunity to get your ideas and products in front of a lot of eyeballs. At the time of this writing (January 2008) social networking websites are among the most heavily trafficked of ALL websites online.

Practically all social networking sites allow you to create a personal “profile” that reveals, among other things, your personal interests. Other people can access and read your profile online, to learn a bit more about you.

Now if the idea of revealing personal details online makes you uncomfortable, just remember that you are not required to reveal your full identity, nor your location, phone number etc. You can even keep your email private if you wish – and we suggest that you do so.

When creating your profile, focus your interests on the topic or niche of the website or product you wish to promote. Then, you can carefully invite profile readers to visit your website(s) and/or your blog(s) where they can learn more about your “topic of personal interest.”

There is nothing sneaky or unethical about this tactic, as long as you are providing informational value to your readers. Just remember – direct selling and marketing IS NOT ALLOWED in most social networking sites.

But you can direct interested parties to your blogs and sites if you do so with a bit of social grace.

Social Bookmarking Sites

Social bookmarking sites are a little different from social networking sites.

Some allow you to create a profile. Most will require you to create an account with a username and password. That allows you to use the site and post “bookmarks” to sites that you like - and that you would like to share with other people.

It gets really good when you realize that you can “bookmark” your own sites as easily as you can any other. By doing that, you're essentially creating backlinks for search engines to find and index, and you're also leaving a link for other users of the site to find and follow.

It's great stuff - but don't go overboard!

Do not swamp any social bookmark site with link after link.

It's best to build your links slowly over a period of time – a long term “organic” approach if you will. Most search engine optimizing (seo) experts agree that a slower organic approach to traffic and backlink building sits better with Google. In Google's eyes (no pun intended) it isn't natural for a site to go from 0 to 50,000 visitors in a week's time.

We also suggest that you develop some kind of promotion journal (maybe in Excel) so that you can keep track of each action you take regarding your sites, and the social bookmarks you create for them.

Remember, a vital key to successful social bookmarking is to use popular keywords as tags.

When you tag your bookmarks with keywords and keyphrases that people are actually using in regular search engines, you will be much more likely to draw traffic to your sites through your publicly shared bookmarks.

Social Video-Sharing

More and more people are not only watching videos for their information, but more marketers are starting to use them as well to get their messages to the end user.

If you are not using videos to some degree in your marketing efforts, then you are missing a great opportunity to capitalize on this growing market.

Basically, you can create a video using screen capture tools – from capturing you surfing websites, to making a video screen capture of you going through a PowerPoint presentation, to a video screen capture of you using Notepad.

And really, it is not all that complicated.

After all, new things are no longer frightening after you've done them a few times.

What you will need is a video screen capture program, a cheap microphone, and if you want to create videos of PowerPoint / Word / Notepad presentations, you will need those programs as well (fear not, I have a free option for those as well!)

Video Screen Capture Programs:

Not Free:

Camtasia ($300) is without argue, one of the best screen capture utilities, but it is also $300! If you can afford it, I would highly suggest you get it.

But it is not necessary...BECAUSE ...

There are some alternatives – some completely free and one that is VERY CHEAP for what it can do! There is a free version of Camtasia available for download.

Camtasia was actually created from a program called Cam Studio....which is free.

You can download it here: <http://www.camstudio.org>

Camstudio – this is a free but quite good video capture software.

It isn't Camtasia, but it doesn't cost $300.00 either. You can CLICK THIS LINK to locate several download sites.

Another free option is called The Jing Project.

The Jing Project is actually made by the creators of Camtasia, but is free and is super easy to use!!! Check it out at: <http://www.jingproject.com>

If you are a Windows XP or Vista user, you already have a built in video creator. It's called Windows Movie Maker. Look for Windows Movie Maker in your Start => Programs menu.

If it is not installed on your system, try this link for help:

<http://www.microsoft.com/windowsxp/using/moviemaker/default.msp>

Two more free options to look at:

<http://www.smallvideosoft.com/screen-video-capture/>

<http://www.virtualdub.org>

For a free alternative to MS PowerPoint (as well as other MS Office suite apps) try: <http://www.OpenOffice.org>

How to get Web 2.0 Traffic

Start your blog, today!

Having your own blog (preferably a WordPress blog) is becoming another must-have for marketers. You can optimize your blog for certain keywords and phrases and using some of the inherent features of a WordPress blog like blog-and-ping and trackbacks, you can get traffic to your blog just by writing posts and pages.

Setting up your blog properly will save ensure that none of your time is wasted.

Leave comments on other blogs, (Don't SPAM):

Digg.com is a great site that you can use to direct a lot of targeted traffic back to your blog or website

Posting to blogs related to your niche and leaving an informative comment and link back to your site is a time-consuming task that does bring in traffic and page rank to your sites.

Note: Do not participate in SPAM-BLOGGING!. Blog owners will remove useless and irrelevant comments from their blog to keep the quality up. This task can be outsourced for cheap if you have a list of blogs you want your links and posts to be on.

Forum Marketing:

Forum marketing has been around for a long time. People can leave links to their sites in signature files on the forums that participate in. Every time they post a comment on a forum thread, people will see their signature file, and if people click on that link, chalk up another visitor driven to your site but not by a search engine.

Posting to forums, A.K.A. forum marketing is a skill that needs to be developed over time, and is really best done by yourself, since many forum owners can easily pick up on the fact that you're posting simply to get traffic to your sites via the signature file.

Squidoo lenses and Hub Pages can be optimized for a few keywords and phrases, and have been known to get top ranking s in the search engines for certain keywords and phrases.

EBay technically, is part of the Web 2.0 craze because it involves people interacting with each other, sort of. Ebay marketing has also made people millionaires.

Classified ads sites like Craigslist and USFreeads and many other high Page Rank, high traffic sites allow advertising and can bring the traffic in but it's difficult to automate this.

For instance, with Craigslist, your ads generally only stay listed for 7 days, sometimes more, but you are supposed to only submit to one location at a time.

If somebody doesn't like your ad, or your competition sees it, they can flag your ad to have it removed. The way to be able to post to all 50 states is to use a different IP address and email address to post your ads every 7 or so days.

There is also some software that can automatically submit these ads for you using screen software and keystroke logging software, but to me, that's a lot of effort to go to when there are easier ways to get traffic.

However, there are also people making tons of money with CraigsList marketing methods. You just need to have a whole stable of ways to get around their filters and rules and what-not.

Automated traffic methods

From what other marketers have said to me, what I'm about to tell you may be "over your head" (their words, not mine)

Well, sometimes good advice go over my head, so let me tell you a little "secret"...

Outsourcing tasks you're not very good at is how millionaires are made.

- Donald Trump doesn't swing a hammer too often I imagine.
- Bill Gates isn't going door-to-door fixing 'puters....
- Mike Filsaime (internet marketing legend) isn't surfing traffic exchanges
- Presidents don't fight wars: they send troops into battle.

Real power comes from commanding the forces at your disposal.

Using services to grow your business will bring you success faster than you could ever have imagined.

Pick a service to use and then start worrying about what direction you will take your business in.

Pick one of the automated traffic generation methods below, then focus on increasing the conversion of your websites.

It really is that simple. Don't think this is hard... A major issue (traffic generation) can be resolved for you by having others do it for you.

Here are some services that can automate traffic generation to your sites.

One-way Link-building services

The best one I've seen so far is LinkVana, for $197.00 a month. One-way link-building requires manual labor therefore it costs more than 3-way link building services.

However, the good part about this is that it builds permanent one-way links back to your site for you. So, if you ever cancel that service, you retain those links forever.

Again, one-way links are links pointing back to your site and you don't have to return a link back to another site.

Three-way link-building services

At the time of this writing, the best-known 3 way link-building service costs $47.00 a month, but its completely automated for you. In my opinion, this is too much to charge for an automated system.

There is a better 3-way link-building system that is even more automated, and it provides double the amount of links that other sites can.

Click here to get the best 3-way link-building service out there today.

SEO firms

Some SEO firms charge up to $5,000.00 a month for their services. In my opinion, this is too much to spend unless you're a big corporation or something.

Doing simple on-page optimization for your web pages and building up the number of links pointing towards those pages is a pretty sound SEO strategy.

Outsourcing your link-building tasks to Virtual Assistants

After reading this report, you can see how many directions there are to go in. There are more ways to get traffic than you could productively pursue.

What it boils down to is this:

Do it yourself or get help with some, if not all aspects of traffic generation.

You can pay to have an established service like Automated LinkBuilding help you get traffic to your sites, or you can start building your own team of virtual assistants to help you do these things.

You can hire people one by one to help you with your tasks until you've established a consistent return on the investment into paying those virtual assistants.

You can barter with people to get things done for you, too. Bartering keeps the $$$ in your pocket and all it costs you is time. Here's a forum I recently started that is devoted mostly to bartering. If you need help with something go there and ask for help, and offer something in exchange for help given to you.

The best way to build a team of helpers is through personal recommendations.

My team of copywriters, graphics guys, article writers and submitters have all come via personal recommendations. Even with personal recommendations, it's still a challenge to get "on the same page" with people in different countries that you only communicate with online.

I recommend that you seek personal recommendations from people that have a team of people they outsource to, and ask if their people need any more work.

If you don't know anyone like that, go to a marketing forum and see if anyone is offering a service there, or ask for recommendations by making a forum post.

If you and I were face-to-face, here's what I would tell you, and it's exactly what I told my neighbor who runs a jewelry store online:

“You don’t have enough years to become an expert in copywriting AND traffic generation.

Outsource traffic generation to a reputable company so you can work on making your site profitable by making it convert more visitors into subscribers and buyers.

Focus on one thing while knowing that other important things are being done for you, or you can work your butt off learning how to send traffic while learning web design, copywriting, product creation and so on.

That method gets you nowhere. I know, ’cuz I’ve been there and almost quit online marketing because of how burned out I got trying to do everything myself”.

My neighbor is lucky, because she is already making money OFFline so she can afford a little investment into having others generate traffic to her sites.

She is now busy playing around with HTML editors and tracking software to make her sites convert better, thereby increasing her investment into a traffic generation company.

It’s a true no-brainer, and I hope you listen, just like she did.

Start your true path to success today by joining [Automated Linkbuilding](http://Automated Linkbuilding) today.

Once you come on board as a member, I will then show you how to make your sites convert better. ☺

Thanks for reading this, I hope it improves your business one way or another
